

Abstract of the Disclosure

Manually portable equipment for use at locations remote from a business premises or office for wireless credit card and/or check verification. The equipment includes a cell phone and/or wireless transceiver preferably capable of operation via direct satellite link, in addition to a terminal, interface, check reader, and printer, in various combinations. A rechargeable DC battery provides operating power to the components for a relatively long-time period.